On 31 October 2007 the GNSO Council decided that a comprehensive and objective understanding of key facts about WHOIS will benefit future GNSO policy development, and plans to ask ICANN staff to conduct several studies. The Council is soliciting suggestions for specific topics of study on WHOIS that community stakeholders recommend be conducted.

Public comments are being sought until 15 February

The Council will then decide the studies for which costs should be developed, for further decision-making.

As of 6 February, approximately 9 suggestions for further study have been offered.
WHOIS cont’d

Suggestions offered so far:
- Documented misuse of WHOIS data
- Nature and extent of privacy options available to shield personal information from display in WHOIS
- Responses by proxy services to notices alleging actionable harm
- Does current WHOIS enable greater competition in the DNS industry (offering privacy services)?
- Experience of ccTLD registries with different WHOIS policies to determine the impact of more restrictive data display policies
- Recoverability of domains in cases of domain theft
- Participation of certain registrars in spam abuse based on falsified WHOIS records
- Locking of WHOIS name searches by some registrars
- Stop the studies already
